

I planted the seed, Apollos watered it, but God has been making it grow.

We give praise and thanks for the Harvest
For seeds sown and crops reaped

The Lord is gracious. This year 20 churches in Mozambique have been growing vegetables, Farming God's Way. The next few pages show the thankfulness of the churches for the harvest so far this year. Many church members will have helped in the gardens and others such as widows and orphans, 'the least of these', will have received the vegetable crops as gifts.

In Caia, Mozambique, the churches linking with Growing Hope are excited and thankful for the Farming God's Way vegetable harvest this year.

Pastor Mateus and his wife, Igreja Luz da Justica

'We are thankful for beetroot, carrots, and lettuce to offer the children. The elderly and orphans give glory to Jesus and say, thank you, Mãe Janety and all who help to provide us with seed and training. May your families be blessed always. We pray for your health in Jesus' name.'

They started sowing seed in April and the churches that have been provided with a well can continue growing through November/December.

Pastor Manuel Araujo, Igreja Missao Mundial

‘Emmanuel, God with us, Jesus our Saviour, Eternal God, yesterday, today, tomorrow, forever.

Very good water without smell or colour. We thank you for the help of having water here in the name of Jesus. The entire population and leaders are grateful for the precious liquid. Mothers and children are also very grateful, taking water to drink to prepare to go to school.’

Other churches that have only hand dug wells run out of water for irrigation around mid August. They still had some harvest between May and August and are thankful for this.

Pastor Marcelino, King of Grace Church

‘The church praises the Lord a lot and thanks Him for this year's harvest.’

Churches that have received the gift of a well have have had abundant harvests.

The harvest is shared with orphans and widows. Children receive much needed nutrition, experiencing carrots and beetroot for the first time.

Almighty and bountiful God

Peace and grace as we reap what we sowed with faith. The fruit of our work, the harvest, is being successful in the churches and we thank God and all who have helped to provide seed, training and our church well. Amen
